SEC EIPD CASE No.: 2024-7938

PROTECTION DEPARTMENT,

CEASE AND DESIST ORDER

Pursuant to the mandate of the Enforcement and Investor Protection Department (“EIPD” for brevity) to protect the investing public, upon finding prima facie evidence of ongoing violations of the Securities Regulation Code (SRC), and other rules and regulations being enforced by the Commission, the EIPD hereby issues this Cease and Desist Order upon the authority of the Commission En Banc and without prejudice to other proceedings.

This Commission received various reports and information that “TRADEXPERT” is engaged in the offer and promotion of an investment scheme that allegedly provides a hands-free trading experience through an automated trading bot, which it claims is capable of maximizing returns while minimizing risks. The scheme operated by “TRADEXPERT”, allegedly requires members or promoters to perform simple daily tasks for which they are purportedly compensated on a daily basis. The scheme further allegedly offers additional compensation or incentives for the recruitment or referral of other individuals to become members.

“TRADEXPERT” offers investments to the public providing daily income ranging from 1%- 1.5%, with maturities of 10 to 30 days, depending on the chosen plan. Further, “TRADEXPERT” offers opportunity for their investor to earn more rewards through their referral program. Members share their affiliate code and for every successful invite, the member receives a one-time commission of 5%.

Further, "TRADEXPERT" offers a 12-month compounding interest (locked-in) plan. This plan will allegedly offer an all-time rate of 8,538.06%. "TRADEXPERT" will allegedly issue Post-dated Check for Compounding Projection once you invest in the one (1) year plan with 45% interest rate monthly.

Based on the findings of the EIPD, "TRADEXPERT" maintains an online presence through various Facebook pages and groups, through which it allegedly promotes an unauthorized investment scheme and encourages the public to invest using its purported automated trading bot, which is represented as requiring little to no trading experience and as capable of generating returns of up to 1.5% daily.

On 30 July 2024, the Commission issued an SEC ADVISORY warning the public NOT TO INVEST or STOP INVESTING in any scheme offered by "TRADEXPERT" to EXERCISE CAUTION in dealing with any individuals or group of persons soliciting investments for and on behalf "TRADEXPERT".

Despite the issuance of an SEC Advisory warning the public to refrain from investing or to cease any investment with "TRADEXPERT" headed by Angelito Harina, a Facebook page representing to be the official page of "TRADEXPERT" continues to misrepresent itself by promoting upgraded investment plans and posting purported withdrawal receipts to entice investors.

To substantiate the allegation that "TRADEXPERT" is engaged in the offer/sale of unregistered securities without the requisite license from the Commission, the EIPD obtained Certifications issued by the Commission's Company Registration and Monitoring Department (CRMD), Markets and Securities Regulation Department (MSRD) and Corporate Governance and Finance Department (CGFD), which all certify that "TRADEXPERT" is not registered with the Commission either as a corporation or as a partnership; has not registered any securities under Section 8 and 12 of the SRC; has not filed an application for the registration of, and/or a license to sell securities; has not been issued any license to sell securities; and is not a registered issuer of mutual funds, exchange traded funds and proprietary/non-proprietary shares or membership certificates and timeshares under Sections 8 and 12 of the SRC.

Section 3.1 of the SRC defines "securities" as follows:

"3.1. "Securities" are shares, participation or interests in a corporation or in a commercial enterprise or profit-making venture and evidenced by a certificate, contract, instrument, whether written or electronic in character. It includes:

xxx

(b) Investment contracts, certificates of interest or participation in a profit-sharing agreement, certificates of deposit for a future subscription; xxx"

An investment contract is defined under Rule 26.3.5 of the 2015 Implementing Rules and Regulations of the SRC (the "SRC-IRR") as follows:

"An investment contract means a contract, transaction or scheme whereby a person invests his money in a common enterprise and is led to expect profits primarily from the efforts of others. It is presumed to exist whenever a person seeks to use the money or property of others on the promise of profits.

A common enterprise is deemed created when two (2) or more investors "pool" their resources, creating a common enterprise, even if the promoter receives nothing more than a broker's commission." (Emphasis supplied)

In the case of SEC v. Howey Co., the US Supreme Court defined an investment contract as a contract or scheme for the placing of capital or laying out of money in a way intended to secure income or profit from its employment.¹ Investment contracts have been used and adopted in various situations where individuals were led to invest money in a common enterprise with the expectation that they would earn a profit through the efforts of the promoter or of someone other than themselves.² It is in the context of the foregoing that the U.S. Supreme Court came up with, and adopted the *Howey Test*³ in determining if an investment scheme, regardless of the legal terminology used, partakes of the nature of an investment contract.

Our Supreme Court thereafter adopted and consistently applied the Howey Test in determining if a transaction or a scheme is a security in the form of an investment contract, which requires prior registration from the Commission. The case of *Virata v. Ng Wee*⁴ emphasized this, to wit:

"In this jurisdiction, the Court employs the Howey test, named after the landmark case of Securities and Exchange Commission v. W.J. Howey Co., to determine whether or not the security being offered takes the form of an investment contract. The case served as the foundation for the domestic definition of the said security.

² Ibid. Although the definition as stated in the Howey Case qualified that the earning of profit was expected to be solely through the efforts of another party, Rule 26.3 of the 2015 IRR of the SRC replaced the qualifier with "primarily", acknowledging that an investment contract may still be present where the individual who placed the money exerted a small amount of effort in an attempt to earn the profits.

⁴ G.R. Nos. 220926, 221058, 221109, 221135 & 221218, July 5, 2017.

Under the Howey test, the following must concur for an investment contract to exist: (1) a contract, transaction, or scheme; (2) an investment of money; (3) investment is made in a common enterprise; (4) expectation of profits; and (5) profits arising primarily from the efforts of others. Indubitably, all of the elements are present in the extant case." (Emphasis supplied)

Moreover, in the case of *Power Homes Unlimited Corp. v. Securities and Exchange Commission*⁵ the Supreme Court ruled that in applying the Howey Test, the nature and the entirety of the transaction should be considered, consistent with the broad concept of "securities" in our jurisdiction, thus:

"It behooves us to trace the history of the concept of an investment contract under R.A. No. 8799. Our definition of an investment contract traces its roots from the 1946 United States (US) case of SEC v. W.J. Howey Co. In this case, the US Supreme Court was confronted with the issue of whether the Howey transaction constituted an "investment contract" under the Securities Act's definition of "security." The US Supreme Court, recognizing that the term "investment contract" was not defined by the Act or illumined by any legislative report, held that "Congress was using a term whose meaning had been crystallized" under the state's "blue sky" laws in existence prior to the adoption of the Securities Act. Thus, it ruled that the use of the catch-all term "investment contract" indicated a congressional intent to cover a wide range of investment transactions. It established a test to determine whether a transaction falls within the scope of an "investment contract." Known as the Howey Test, it requires a transaction, contract, or scheme whereby a person (1) makes an investment of money, (2) in a common enterprise, (3) with the expectation of profits, (4) to be derived solely from the efforts of others. Although the proponents must establish all four elements, the US Supreme Court stressed that the Howey Test "embodies a flexible rather than a static principle, one that is capable of adaptation to meet the countless and variable schemes devised by those who seek the use of the money of others on the promise of profits." Needless to state, any investment contract covered by the Howey Test must be registered under the Securities Act, regardless of whether its issuer was engaged in fraudulent practices." (Emphasis ours)

Applying the foregoing parameters established in jurisprudence, the EIPD finds reasonable grounds to believe that the investment scheme of "TRADEXPERT", where investments received from the public earns guaranteed profits constitutes an offer/sale of unregistered securities as all the elements of the Howey Test are present, to wit:

First, there is an investment of money by the public in the investment scheme of "TRADEXPERT" who were enticed to invest in their scheme;

Second, there is a common enterprise in the sense that the investors monies were pooled in respondent "TRADEXPERT" alleged profit-making venture;

Third, there was clearly an expectation of profits on the part of its investors who were promised that their money would earn guaranteed returns;

Lastly, the profits are derived primarily from the efforts of others. Here the investors had no hand in the management of "TRADEXPERT" and earned profits by merely investing in said entity.

Furthermore, the act of "TRADEXPERT" in carrying out its unauthorized investment-taking activities through social media, including the posting of the purported withdrawal transactions highlighting substantial amounts of returns, promoting its unauthorized investment schemes constitute as public offering as defined under Rule 3.1.17 of the 2015 SRC IRR, to wit:

"3.1.17. Public offering is any offering of securities to the public or to anyone, whether solicited or unsolicited. Any solicitation or presentation of securities for sale through any of the following modes shall be presumed to be a public offering:

X X X

3.1.17.2 Presentation in any public or commercial place;

3.1.17.3 Advertisement or announcement in radio, television, telephone, electronic communications, information communication technology or any other forms of communication;" (Emphasis supplied)

Section 8.1 of the SRC categorically provides that securities cannot be sold or offered for sale within the Philippines if the same are not registered with the Commission in the form of an approved Registration Statement and a Permit to Offer/Sell issued in favor of the applicant, to wit:

"SEC. 8. Requirement of Registration of Securities. – 8.1 Securities shall not be sold or offered for sale or distribution within the Philippines, without a registration statement duly filed with and approved by the Commission. Prior such sale, information on the securities, in such form and with such substance as the Commission may prescribe, shall be made available to each prospective purchaser." (Emphasis supplied)

In the instant case, the Certifications issued by the MSRD, CGFD, and CRMD all confirm that "TRADEXPERT", Angelito Harina, and their Agents have no license to sell, offer, or deal with securities; neither have they caused the registration of the securities that they are currently offering or selling. Accordingly, the offer and sale of unregistered securities in the form of investment contracts, without the requisite license, constitute a clear and continuing violation of Sections 8, 26 and 28 of the SRC. These circumstances warrant the immediate issuance of a Cease and Desist Order in order to protect the investing public.

Relative to the issuance of a CDO, Section 64.1 of the SRC provides that the Commission may issue a CDO without the need for a prior hearing, when by its judgment, the act or practice will operate as a fraud upon investors or is otherwise likely to cause grave or irreparable injury or prejudice to the investing public, thus:

"Section 64. Cease and Desist Order. — 64.1. The Commission, after proper investigation or verification, motu proprio or upon verified complaint by any aggrieved party, may issue a cease and desist order without the necessity of a prior hearing if in its judgment the act or practice, unless restrained, will operate as a fraud on investors or is otherwise likely to cause grave or irreparable injury or prejudice to the investing public."

(Emphasis supplied)

The unauthorized investment scheme of "TRADEXPERT" likewise constitutes financial fraud as defined under the Republic Act. No. 11765 of the Financial Products and Services Consumer Protection Act (FCPA), which provide that any form of deceptive solicitation of investments from the public, which includes Ponzi schemes and such other schemes involving the promise or offer of profits or returns sourced from the investments or contributions made by the investors themselves, and the offering or selling of investment schemes to the public without a license, Considering that financial fraud is punishable under the FCPA, any act constituting the same should immediately be cease and desist by the Commission for the protection of the investing public.

The EIPD submits that the act of "TRADEXPERT" and its Agents in selling/offering unregistered securities operates as a fraud to the public which, if unrestrained, will likely cause grave injury or prejudice to the investing public.⁶

In SEC vs. CJH Development Corporation (G.R. No. 210316, 28 November 2016), the Supreme Court ruled that the act of selling unregistered securities without the requisite license necessarily operates as a fraud on investors, thus:

"The law is clear on the point that a cease and desist order may be issued by the SEC motu proprio, it being unnecessary that it results from a verified complaint from an aggrieved party. A prior hearing is also not required whenever the Commission finds it appropriate to issue a cease and desist order that aims to curtail fraud or grave or irreparable injury to investors. There is good reason for this provision, as any delay in the restraint of acts that yield such results can only generate further injury to the public that the SEC is obliged to protect.

The act of selling unregistered securities would necessarily operate as a fraud on investors as it deceives the investing public by making it appear that respondents have authority to deal on such securities. Section 8.1 of the SRC clearly states that securities shall not be sold or offered for sale or distribution within the ⁶ Section 64 of the Securities Regulation Code.

Philippines without a registration statement duly filed with and approved by the SEC and that prior to such sale, information on the securities, in such form and with such substance as the SEC may prescribe, shall be made available to each prospective buyer." (Emphasis supplied)

The Commission through the EIPD will initiate the appropriate administrative and criminal action against any persons or entities found to act as solicitors, information providers, salesmen, agents, brokers, dealers or the like for and in their behalf.

Finally, "TRADEXPERT", Angelito Harina, and their respective officers, operators, administrators, promoters, representatives, salesmen, agents, investment team planners, mentors, enablers, influencers, assigns, conduit entities, subsidiaries, and any and all persons claiming and/or acting for and in their behalf are PROHIBITED from transacting any and all business involving funds in its depository banks, and from transferring, disposing, or conveying in any manner, any and all assets, properties, real or personal, including bank deposits, if any, of which the named persons herein may have interest, claim or participation, whether directly or indirectly, under their custody, immediately to forestall grave damage and prejudice to all concerned and to ensure the preservation of the assets for the benefit of the investors without authority from the Commission.
